GIVE BLOOD ON MONDAY

Lee, Students Participate In N I C Meeting

Group Favors The "Right Of Selection"

At the National Interfraternity Conference held in New York City, November 27 - 29, delegates centered discussions around discrimination and went on record as favoring "the right to be selective" of members of fraternities. This alumni session was held in conjunction with a conference of IFC delegates. Representing Middlebury were Dean Storrs Lee, Harding Williams '53, Douglas Hanau '54 as delegates, and David Corey '55 as a visitor.

The main point of argument at the NIC was a report of Albert Bard, New York attorney, in which he criticized the trustees of Amherst College for their anti-discrimination order, and for their decision to accept as a "satisfactory substitute" the promise of an Amherst chapter "to disregard its national constitution" in initiating new members. He said that although he held "no brief" for the selectivity rule he considered the trustee's action "an educational blunder."

Mr. Bard's report was discussed and voted down by the NIC delegates, who declared, however, that fraternities should be "free from any interference or restriction by any non-member" with respect to membership.

They agreed that "any attempt to restrict or regulate" the right of a college fraternity to choose its own members "an inadvisable interference with the fundamental right of free association guaranteed by the United States Constitution as the right of the people peaceably to assemble." Action, however, was deferred until 1953 at which time each member fraternity will return with "definite views and decisions" on the subject.

The undergraduate conference program included a closed discussion of discrimination. The issue was debated by 150 members, the southern delegates asserting they couldn't eliminate "selectivity." Alexander Ruthven, former president of the University of Michigan, summarized this view by saying that "no one has a constitutional or legal right to join any particular voluntary social organization; he must be accepted." No formal resolution was drafted, but, according to Harding Williams, a straw vote showed that most delegates were in favor of local autonomy for all fraternities.

Kenneth Dibben and Ronald George Evans, members of the combined British Universities debating team, will participate in the annual British debate to be held here December 12.

Blood Drive Asks 200 Pints

American Red Cross Bloodmobile unit of the Burlington Blood Center will be at Middlebury College at McCullough Gym on Monday, December 8 and will be open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Edward Killeen '54 and Nancy English '53 are co-chairmen of the drive.

Prospective donors and those willing to help during the day with registration and the canteen, are urged to sign up as soon as possible in the Student Union. It is hoped that the quota of two hundred pints will be met.

Those who plan to give blood may eat a light meal of sandwiches and coffee, but no greasy foods, before giving blood. Instructions for the donors will be given on entering the gym but the general procedure will be to register with the girl at the desk who will check health records and blood types. After this

Chest Drive Closes Books

Last minute Community Chest contributions totaling some $300 swelled the drive collections to $2,538.16. This sum is more than was collected in either the 1950 or 1951 campaigns but fell short of the $3,000 goal.

Some 68 per cent of the student body contributed to the week-long drive which ended on November 22, although contributions were accepted until December 1.

Individual student contributions totalled $317, with 85 per cent of the women contributing $429, and 55 per cent of the men giving $388. The remainder of the funds was given by student organizations and by members of the administration and staff.

Canadian Iroquois Demand Part Of Vermont Wampum

By Don Nason '54

Vermonters have been having their troubles as of late. The crux of their problem is a $4,800,000 surplus in the state treasury; they just don't know what to do with the excess funds. "Give it back to the Indians" is one solution that found immediate and enthusiastic popular support from 5,000 material-minded Canadian Iroquois.

Furthermore, the Indians believe that they have a legal claim to some of the money, $1,200,000 to be exact. The claim dates back to 1776 when early Vermonters seized a sizeable portion of the territory from the six nations confederacy. Rubbing salt in the wounds, these Yankee settlers, Gameliel Painter included, unceremoniously drove the dispossessed red skins northward.

Roland Stevens, the Indians' attorney, is now involved in rounding up strays and niggards who have not reported for duty. The trial is scheduled for early next year by which time Stevens hopes to have a sizeable share of the scattered tribe in hand. Meanwhile, Chief Moose Thompson, Chief Phillip Staodentsta, and Chief Satogogette Monteur are shaping up their mid-winter of-

Dr. de Beus, Dutch Envoy, To Speak Tomorrow Night

Dr. Jacobus Gijsbertus de Beus, Dutch Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States, will speak in Mead Memorial Chapel tomorrow night at 8 p.m., Norman Kittell '54 and Jane-Blair Bunting '55, co-chairmen of the International Relations Club announced this week. The topic will be "Prospects of a North Atlantic Community."

Dr. de Beus studied law at Leyden University, where he graduated cum laude as doctor of law. In 1933 he won the Theodore Marburg Prize for International Law and entered the diplomatic service of The Netherlands in 1935. He was Secretary of The Netherlands Legation in Berlin until the invasion of Holland by Germany. During the war he published a book on the future of The Netherlands, which was repeatedly reprinted by the Dutch underground press.

Dr. de Beus has also served as head of the Far Eastern Office of The Netherlands Foreign Office in Djakarta, Indonesia, and in 1950 was appointed Second Deputy High Commissioner of The Netherlands in Indonesia.

Also in 1950 he served as Minister Plenipotentiary of the Netherlands in Washington and in 1952 he received his appointment as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary in Washington.

The lecture will be required for all freshmen.

Scholarship Drive Starts

Middlebury Alumni Fund hopes to realize 53% participation in its 1952-53 drive. Last year, 27.8% of the alumni contributed $21,242 toward the fund. The money contributed is applied toward endowment and scholarships. This money is entirely spent for these purposes during the school year.

The bulletin recently sent to alumni stressed the relatively poor response the drive has received in the past as compared with similar New England colleges. For instance, Bates alumni responded with 51% contributing; Colby recognized 45% participation. Middlebury ran a poor third with its 27.8% response.

Faculty Pass Regulations On Student Arms

New firearms regulations for all students will go into effect following the Christmas recess, and any firearms in the possession of students will have to be re-registered by January 9. The new procedure, a safety measure similar to that now in effect at a number of other colleges such as Dartmouth, was voted by the faculty on recommendation of the department of military science and tactics.

The new regulations are as follows:

1. Firearms in the possession of students must be registered in the Dean's Office within five days after they are brought to the college. Only sporting and target weapons will be approved.
2. Students must secure written parental authorization if under 21, and pass a safety test administered by the department of military science and tactics, before permissions are granted.
3. Possession of loaded firearms within the village limits of Middlebury is prohibited.
4. Hand loading of ammunition or possession of hand loading materials in any college building or fraternity house is not permitted.
5. Ammunition and firearms must be secured and stored separately.
6. Permits must be attached to firearms at all times when not in use, and in possession of the owner when they are in use.

Prior to departure for Christmas vacation, students wishing to retain firearms are requested to obtain new registration cards in duplicate from the Dean's Office. The cards should be taken home

Student Poll Slated On Long Vacation

CLASS ROOMS

Classrooms in Munroe and Warner Science buildings have been opened for study. Rooms 102 and 107 in Munroe will be open after classes and on every afternoon but Sunday until 10 p.m. A room in Warner will be open on Sundays from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Opinions Wanted On Thanksgiving

A poll to discover student opinion on whether or not the college should initiate a three day Thanksgiving holiday with the stipulation that the extra two days be taken from other vacations will be conducted in junior-senior assembly tomorrow, December 5, and in freshman-sophomore assembly Friday, December 12.

The CAMPUS, the Men's Assembly and the Women's Assembly will conduct the poll jointly. Results will represent only the opinion of the student body and will not in any way represent a decision on whether or not the administration will extend the present one day Thanksgiving recess.

Student opinion on the subject, however, will be referred to the administration and will receive publicity in future issues of the CAMPUS.

Students voting in the poll are urged to note that the ballot states explicitly that the proposed extension of Thanksgiving recess would require taking time from Christmas or Spring vacations.

Exact wording of the ballot is as follows:

Would you be in favor of extending future Thanksgiving vacations from Wednesday noon until Monday morning at 8 a.m. even if it was necessary to eliminate two (2) days from other vacations.

Players Plan One-Acts For Dec. 10 & 11

Wig and Pen will present a series of three one-act plays, arena style, December 10 and 11 which will be directed by James VanWart, drama instructor.

"The Marriage" by Douglas Hyde is a fantasy in a serious vein. A newly-wed Irish couple are bemoaning the fact that they must separate and find work in order to make money enough to live together when a blind poet arrives on the scene and helps them find a solution to their problem.

George Bernard Shaw's "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets" features the author's idea of what might have happened at a meeting between Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth. Written from a rather "irreverent" viewpoint, it takes the bard "off his pedestal" and is quite light and refreshing according to Mr. Van Wart.

"The Case of the Crushed Petunias" is a comical fantasy by Tennessee Williams. It was written early in the author's career, Director Van Wart reports, and is entirely different from any of his latest works.

This Week

Junior-senior assembly on Friday, Dec. 5.

Dr. Jacobus de Beus, Dutch envoy to U. S., will speak on Friday at 8 p.m. in Mead Chapel.

Players Dance from 8:30 until midnight at McCullough Gym on Saturday, Dec. 6.

Chaplain Charles Scott will preach at junior-senior vesper services on Sunday, Dec. 7.

Time For A Change!

Tomorrow, December 5, and on Friday, December 12, the CAMPUS, in conjunction with the Men's Assembly and the Women's Assembly, will run a student poll in chapel on whether the administration should make the one day Thanksgiving recess into a three day holiday with the stipulation that the extra days be taken from some other vacation period. This poll is merely an expression of student opinion.

In January 1949, a similar poll was taken at Middlebury in which a majority opinion was found to favor retaining the present one day recess with no cut rule enforced the day before and the day after Thanksgiving.

In a letter to the CAMPUS previous to the poll, the administration asked students to consider the expenses entailed in traveling to and from homes; the fact that Christmas vacation would begin only three weeks after Thanksgiving; the fact that dormitories and dining halls would be closed during the vacation and that the lost time would have to be made up during some other vacation due to the necessity for holding classes at least forty-five hours a semester.

Since that time, however, some conditions have changed which seem to make it feasible to initiate a three day holiday at Thanksgiving.

With the present car regulations allowing most upperclassmen to have cars, the transportation problem is considerably improved. The majority of the student body is now able to travel by automobile rather than by bus and train. Those that do not own cars obtain rides with other students, thus lessening the expense per person and much of the inconvenience of traveling the two or three hundred miles that an average student has to travel to get home.

Another condition which has changed since the previous poll is the necessity for a long Christmas vacation. In 1948-49, the men's college was made up primarily of veterans who were hard pressed to make ends meet at college. Consequently, the majority of men sought work during Christmas vacation. A long holiday was needed to allow them to obtain this work.

Now, however, a smaller number of men work during the Christmas holiday. This year, for instance, when the vacation is shorter than it was last year and shorter than it will be next year, men who do need jobs at Christmas and are on scholarship or on the dean's list can get excused from classes early. In 1948 such a system was not used and could not be used because there were too many men asking for the privilege of leaving early.

A thorough examination of next year's tentative calendar, published elsewhere in this week's CAMPUS, reveals that the Christmas holidays are the only feasible place from which to take the two days extra necessary for Thanksgiving. This means, however, that if a Thanksgiving recess was granted next year, the Christmas holidays would be exactly the same length as they are this year since the Calendar Committee has added two days to the Christmas vacation in 1953.

In drawing up the schedule for next year, the Calendar Committee considered many problems. Realizing that this year's schedule was squeezed to a bare minimum with a shortened Christmas vacation, shortened exam periods, and shortened spring vacation, the committee sought to provide greater leeway by extending the graduation date one week and adding the six extra days at scattered points throughout the schedule. Thus two days were added to Christmas, one to each of the exam periods, one to spring vacation and one at the end of the second semester. It was practically impossible, however, to start earlier in the fall, because parents of freshmen can conveniently bring new students to Middlebury only on a weekend. Likewise, graduation has to be held on a weekend so that alumni can participate.

The philosophy was that a tight schedule such as we have this year does not provide students with enough breaks does not provide enough time for exams, both for students and professors, and does not provide the registrar's office with enough time to get the marks out.

We agree with these arguments and with the policy of maintaining forty-five hours of class time per semester per class.

We maintain, however, that an 18 day Christmas vacation, which is what most colleges get, is an adequate break, especially if such a length would make a Thanksgiving recess possible.

We ask students, when they are expressing their opinions in the poll tomorrow and next week, to consider that there is more advantage to initiating a longer Thanksgiving recess than there is to maintaining the present system.

Midd Thanksgiving Recess? Students Weigh Pros, Cons

By Ann Towle '55
and
James McElwain '55

Since quite a few Midd students left college over Thanksgiving, we decided to find out what the consensus is on the subject: "Should Thanksgiving be made a three day holiday at Middlebury provided that the time be taken from some other vacation?"

Jane Pope '54: "Yes. The major objection seems to be that most students can't get home. Actually, considering just the people from New England, New York, New Jersey, about 1,000 students could go home if they were given three days."

Jane Jackman '55: "Yes. The fall term is such a long one, I think we need a rest. I wouldn't mind a shortening of a vacation."

Phil Norcross '55: "Yes. Every other college gives a three-day holiday, why can't Midd? Judging from the amount of work accomplished in most classes during this time it would be no great strain to have a holiday then."

Lou Limbach '53: "No. As it stands with our vacations already shortened, I would say "no"; but I do feel that we need a vacation. As to the argument that some people have no place to go if they are unable to go home, this past weekend showed that over 90 per cent found a place to stay if they wanted."

Ellen Child '56: "No. Some people can't go home either because of expense or time. I would prefer a longer vacation at some other time."

Marty Gray '53: "No. I think that those people who feel that they can cut classes, do cut and go home for the weekend; so why make it a three day holiday that would have to be added some place else."

Susan Taylor '53: "Yes. Since about two-thirds of the college leaves anyway, we might as well have a vacation. I really think it's a waste of the professor's time to hold classes with so few present."

Lois Wanstall '54: "Yes. If the time needed were provided by adding a day at the beginning and end of school."

Ace Williams '53: "Yes, definitely, since the break comes during a time when most people are loaded down with work. A few days extra in June would be unnoticed."

Julie Heilborn '54: "No. It would be so much time spent traveling and so much expense that it wouldn't be worth the actual time home."

Sandy Bing '53: "Yes, but I can see no need for vacation juggling. As far as I am concerned Thanksgiving should be made a three day holiday and other vacations should remain as they are."

Marjorie Dawson '54: "Yes, definitely. Last week's editorial presented my views. Besides, even if people can't get home, they can at least have a break and a rest."

Jean Bizette '56: "No, I don't think it would be worthwhile for those who couldn't get home."

Patricia Gibbs '55: "No. I would appreciate the time more at Christmas or some other vacation. Besides it's only three weeks to Christmas."

Student Art Show Reviewed; Artists Too Can Produce

By Nancy English '53

To a less than amateur critic of modern art, an adequate appraisal of the student art exhibit now being held in Carr Hall cannot be expected. However, from a purely subjective point of view, it can be said that the show is really good. The artists have at last joined league with the athletes, journalists, and creative writers to prove to any who are interested that they too can produce.

In what appears to be an imitation of Salvadore Dali, John Griese '53 is showing an oil entitled "Immortality."

William Platka '53 has done an oil representing the stoke hole of the ship in scene I, Act II of Eugene O'Neill's "Hairy Ape." Although not in keeping with the impressionistic setting demanded by the context of O'Neill's play, Mr. Platka's painting maintains a certain vitality of its own.

Luke Tedeschi '56 has contributed two oils both of which are purely imitative. One is a replica of a picture postcard, the other of a street scene which brings to mind a similar painting of Van Gogh.

The oil of a mountain village by Robert Johnson '53, although well-balanced and neatly done, is reminiscent of "a mid-Victorian Christmas card."

The oil contributed by Margaret Porter '55 evokes a genuine feeling of repose which is heightened by excellent color composition and quality of tone.

Outstanding contributions in the show are William Rice's '53 oils, "Eddie Thomsen" and "The Cello Player," a pen and ink sketch, "Dark Night of the Soul," and a small water color "Kitchen Scene."

"Seascape," an oil by Allison Knowles '55, exhibits an impressionistic quality which although not original is well done.

A watercolor design done in varying shades of green and a water color of a boy and a girl by Nancy Grimm '55 are delicate and charming compositions. The one exhibits a certain tonal vitality, while the other maintains a certain quality of fantasy.

Erica Child's three water colors show unusually fine brush work. All three compositions display a distinctive oriental quality which is refreshing to view.

Also worthy of note are Patricia Rice's anatomical drawings and Elizabeth Headley's charcoal portrait.

The most unusual feature of the exhibit is Edgar Kniffen's "Horn of Plenty" in a geometrical abstraction. Also of particular interest are the two mobiles by Monroe Hall '54 and Barbara Fitzgerald '54.

fensive. In passing mention, Addison County and surrounding lands will figure prominently in the court case.

Unfortunately, things are progressing smoothly. Middlebury students will not likely have the pleasure of seeing the Rutland Railroad raided by warring Iroquois. Nevertheless, Vermont's sister state New Hampshire refused to overlook the possibility for some favorable publicity. Last week, the Montpelier paper carried an advertisement advising the local citizenry "to get out while the getting's good." So far most Vermonters have been taking the uprising rather calmly; no noticeable dwindling in population can be reported. They probably feel secure at last in realizing that their rights will be upheld by the new great white father in Washington.

Midd Hunter Kills Bobcat; Thrice Fined

An enterprising young deer hunter recently found himself bucking the law. It seems that this Middlebury student decided to do a little hunting in New York State. He thereupon took out a deer hunting license, over-looking the fact that a regular hunting license is also required for deer seekers in that state. Our man had no luck in sighting deer on his chosen hunting day, but just as he was about to quit and return home, he spied a bobcat. "There's a bounty on that thar bobcat," he thought and plugged him "dead center." He then dragged it to the game warden for his reward.

But the warden said, "Sorry lad, we give no bounty in this here county." He then asked to see the hunter's license, which, of course, was nonexistent. "There's a fine for hunting without a license, you know. . . ." said the warden.

This didn't discourage the young catslayer, however, for he then proceeded to a neighboring county and tried to convince the game warden there, that he had shot the cat in his county. But, the law asked questions, where did he shoot it, how, and when. Once again our man threw the bull, but was answered, "You couldn't have - there's no such place in this county." The warden slapped two fines on him, for hunting without a license, and for lying to an officer, and claimed the cat until the fines were paid.

Dejected and deerless, the hunter returned to Midd and is currently trying to beg, borrow, but not steal, the necessary $17.50 from his DU brothers in order to bail out the bobcat and have it mounted as a symbol of his unsuccessful fight against the law. You can't beat it.

for the necessary signature of parents and returned to the Dean's Office with authorizations from home and from the department of military science by January 9th.

Written safety tests will be given at 4:30 on January 6 and 7 at the Field House. In the tests students will be required to demonstrate their understanding of basic firearms safety rules, of local and state laws and ordinances governing the use of firearms, and of the capabilities and limitations of the weapon for which a permit is requested.

Letter

To the editor:

The 1952 Community Chest co-chairmen wish to extend sincere thanks to all who contributed time and effort to this year's drive.

Special thanks are due to Ginny Rost and Jim Kennedy for having initiated and carried through the very successful Community Fair, to the college for having donated the use of McCullough Gym that evening, to the faculty members who provided both baby pictures and intermission entertainment, to the Panthers for having donated their music, to the CAMPUS for its support of the drive, to the solicitors, and to the members of the staff and student body who made the drive a success.

Despite the fact that the actual goal of $3,000 was not attained, above all we wish to thank those students and members of the faculty and administration whose generous contributions sent our total receipts over the $2500 mark. Everyone at Middlebury can be proud of this sum which represents substantial moral and financial aid to each one of the organizations sponsored this year.

Sincerely,
Susan Taylor '53

Forum Plans For Holidays

The Women's Forum is busy with its annual round of holiday activities. The 1952 Thanksgiving project made the day more meaningful to a number of the town's needy families. The Thanksgiving basket committee under its chairman, Lois Wanstall '54, delivered baskets containing the ingredients of a complete Thanksgiving meal to six local families. Small personal boxes were delivered to a number of the town's elderly women as well as to the county men's poor farm.

Marjorie McCallum '53, president of Women's Forum, has announced that plans are also well underway for the group's annual Christmas activities. Saturday, December 6, has been set for the Thrift Shop Christmas sale. Members are now busy making stuffed animals and knitted articles to be sold at a table of new gifts, an added feature of this year's sale. Donations of second-hand clothing in good condition are also being received for sale at that time. Constance Sherman '53 is the sale committee chairman.

Santa will again make his appearance at two Christmas parties sponsored by the Forum for the town's children participating in the organization's game and story hour, arts and crafts groups and the preschool dancing class which meet weekly in the Community House. December 11 and 12 are the dates set by Joan Cramp '53, chairman of the committee.

The recently formed Old Ladies' Home committee, with its chairman, Nana Dean '53, will visit the Salisbury home and stage a Christmas party and carol sing there.

TOWN FATHER
A biography of Gamaliel Painter
BY W. STORRS LEE
As courageous as Daniel Boone . . . as legendary as Johnny Appleseed . . . Still, too few know the fascinating story of this man who helped to carve America out of the wilderness. It is a colorful biography of a driving New Englander, town founder and planner, father of Middlebury College, fighter with Ethan Allen, sheriff, judge, industrialist, and toll-road tycoon—who rose to greatness and was then all but forgotten.

Julian, Jacobs Ready Teams

By Rod Macdonald

This coming Monday the basketball team inaugurates both the season as a whole and the state series in particular when it plays host to St. Michael's College of Winooski Park. Last year for the first time in several years, St. Mike's failed to capture the state crown, losing out to UVM. Nevertheless they managed to defeat the Panthers twice; 87-48 and 74-53. Ten men were lost to graduation last year, and this is admittedly a rebuilding year for the Michaelmen.

There are five returning led by George Barry, last season named to the All-Catholic, All-New England team. The others are Mike Carr, Bob Murphy, Hank Witte and Pete Roy. St. Mike's opened its season last Thursday with a 72-56 win over McGill University of Canada. However, Coach Doc Jacobs derived little comfort from the win. Play was ragged throughout and the Michaelmen had to come from a 26-27 halftime deficit to win over a team that was very much lacking in height as well as all-around court play. Barry was the high scorer with 17 points closely followed by freshman Bob Young who netted 16. There is no denying that St. Mike's has height, notably a 6'6" freshman, Chris Kelly, but so does Middlebury and with their greater experience, Monday night's game should go to the Panthers.

A tougher opponent will be on tap Wednesday at the Field House as the "Big Green" from Dartmouth make their debut on the Middlebury floor. Last year the Panthers were defeated 76-55 in an early season game but this year it should be closer. Dartmouth's hopes rest on its sophomores who are lacking in height and game experience but are strong on speed and tricky ball-handling. Chief among these sophs are Glenn Wilson, Jody Coach Tony Lupien and Captain Fred Brooks are shown talking over possible strategy to be used against St. Michael's in Midd's opening game of the season Monday.

From Out Of The Blue

By A. C. Bass

Every now and again when the questionable question of Middlebury athletics is served up there is always a cry for de-emphasis. Here you can only ask, Why the cry? There has never been the emphasis. Sports have always played second fiddle to education, and, in college, that is to be expected and chalked up to necessity. However, sports and all they stand for can, by no means, be slighted. They are as much a part of education as is the printed page.

Sports and business, whether on the lunch-pail or the white-collar scale are made up of the two elements: competition and chance. Anyone who leaves a place of learning without a realization of these factors has missed a large portion in reading the book of life - a portion whose understanding someday will be needed but will not be so easily gained. This understanding does not only come to the athlete but to those who participate from the stands as well.

The Arch

Those who maintain that you can keep your same standards while others skyrocket lose sight of the objective of any game. That objective is victory. If the teams don't want to win they won't be playing, and, just as important, if they can't win they shouldn't be out there. You can always run a good race and play a good game, but what is it worth when time after time your race or your game just isn't good enough.

The very fact that the team and its coach or coaches are willing to work everyday at developing a winner is indication enough of the outcome that is desired. If sight is lost of this ultimate aim then it is not to be found every so often in an upset win or a close score. There is no riding through the Blue and White Arch of Triumph on the rotting carcass of moral victory.

Like Old Greece

Today Middlebury has the teams that can win. Only by keeping these teams winning can the necessary interest be kept alive. There is no point in lowering the dignity of any institution or of any individual through an attitude of indifference. To keep the old pace when new records are being made isn't even good in theory. Let those tears of de-emphasis be saved for the future. For, if athletics here fall into decay crumbling with them will be the once proud name of Middlebury that found out too late "you don't stay top dog by wagging your tail."

Starting Five Still Doubtful Lupien Accents Teamwork

By Bob Kelly

A practice game against the Springfield Admirals ended with the Panthers on the short end of an 82-81 score, but left Coach Lupien optimistic about the team's chances this season. Middlebury scored 40% of their shots and although the score indicates a poor defense, the Admirals' points came either from outside on exceptional shooting, or as a result of deadly accuracy by big Paul Aumand who used his unstoppable hook shot for 25 points.

Sonny Dennis proved that he doesn't have to be under the hoop to score by netting 27 points, most of them coming from the corner. Rangy Tom Hart tapped in most of his 20 points, and was a demon on rebounds. Lupien uncovered two scorers in Perkins and Bass. "Leftie" Perkins came up with eleven points while Art Bass dazzled the crowd with ten points worth of jump shots.

Steady Eddie Killeen handled the play making chores with Roger Colton and Fred Brooks sharing the rebounding duties. Colton can be given credit for holding Aumand during the second half. The only way he could be stopped was to keep the ball from him and Roger did that.

The Springfield club boasted plenty of height and ability. Despite the size of the court neither team used the favorite small court defense, the zone. This Saturday the Admirals will find the Field House court considerably larger and may find the going rough, especially in the late stages of the game.

With two inside scorers assured, Lupien is hoping to be able to keep the defense spread with an outside scorer, possibly in the form of Johnny Castelli. Bass and Perkins are

Over The Cracker Barrel

The Panther Icemen will hit Lake Placid this Saturday to begin workouts for the '53 campaign . . . Duke Nelson and Irv Morris journeyed to Tilton, N. H. last week to speak at the Tilton School . . . The occasion was Tilton's annual Varsity Football Banquet. Latest from the basketball rule book: fouls which formerly would have resulted in one free toss now give the shooter two tries to make one basket, if he misses the first shot he gets another; during the last three minutes of games all fouls are good for two tries unless the foul is committed when a man is in the act of shooting and the shot is made, then he is awarded only one free toss; foul shots may no longer be waived. . . . Apparently Dartmouth is really up for their first net game at Midd this month. Scouts from the Big Green had a good look at the Panther hoopsters in their recent game with the Springfield Admirals . . . This gave rise to Coach Lupien's remark that games are won on the court, not on paper.

. . . Midd's most profitable mistake during the Springfield Admiral game came when Roger Colton heaved a long bullet pass intended for Tom Hart. The pass sailed far over Hart's head and swished through the cords for a basket and two points.

Mountaineers Cop Woodsman's Meet

McGill Next, Eight Follow

By Jon Brand

The Middlebury Mountain Club Woodsmen's team, holder of the Brazel Memorial Trophy in intercollegiate woodsmen's competition, defeated nine Canadian opponents in an international meet at McGill University in Montreal last weekend.

The Middlebury team scored 602.8 points of a possible 700, taking first in 4 out of 7 events. McGill placed second with 526.3 points and Sir George Williams College of Montreal came in third with 504.5 points.

Middlebury was represented by six Skyline members, seniors Bill Smith and Don Peach, juniors Bill Scott, Mal McConnell and Hart Peterson, and sophomore Larry Dietter.

The Mountain Club copped first in felling and twitching, speed chopping, pulp throwing, and fire building. Competition was on the basis of time, the best garnering 100 points, the others being inversely proportional to the winning time. Felling concerns the chopping down of 10 inch standing poplars, twitching the dragging of a rope-secured log 100 yards. Speed chopping is the four times sectioning of a 10 inch prone log; pulp throwing is the casting of three billets between two posts 15 feet away; fire-building involves firing two chunks of wood and boiling a pot of soapy water.

The top performance of the woodsmen's team can be attributed in part to outstanding showings in losing events, namely splitting three logs into four sections, buck sawing and crosscut sawing, each of these entailing sawing a 15 inch elm log six times.

The team places emphasis on equipment and skill rather than conditioning, which, of course, is by no means a secondary consideration. A special type of axe was procured for this meet from Georgia. There are numerous tricks that are utilized, such as those of sharpening saws differently for different types of wood.

The six Middlebury representatives found northern hospitality in abundance at McGill. They had dinner at the Royal Victoria College Women's Residence, attended a square dance, and spent Saturday night in the football players' gym.

Next spring the Middlebury team will be defending champions at the Eastern Collegiate competition to be held at the University of Maine in Orono, Maine.

also potential back court threats. Killeen concentrates on feeding teammates taking a minimum of shots himself.

The 81 points scored by Middlebury Saturday marks the second time this year in practice games that the team has gone over the four score mark. The previous Tuesday they pulled away from the Rutland Comets in the last period winning easily, 83-47. Dennis and Hart were top men in that contest.

Lupien has not named his starting line-up for the St. Mike's game but it probably will have Hart at center, Brooks and Dennis at the forwards, and Killeen at one guard position with the other spot not yet filled. Castelli, Perkins, Bass, Colton, Sheehan, or Hunt are fighting for the fifth spot.

Mathewson, Mike Ellovich and Larry Blades. The two teams should be fairly well matched and with the advantage of a home court, the Panthers might well emerge the victor.

Let's Be Frank

By Frank Sullivan

As far as this hockey affair is concerned, I am deeply mortified to see the lack of concern among the hierarchy in relation to the sad plight of the hockey squad. Anyone who is a student here at Middlebury or who has graduated from Middlebury, cannot remain aloof from this tragedy, if we can call it that. The morale of the team is high, which shows the high calibre of the players and what they will do under the crushing circumstances. They are willing to go out on that ice and skate their hearts out against clubs like R.P.I., St. Lawrence, and Clarkson, which could be called athletic suicide. A reporter can usually make things look rosy, but in this case I throw up my hands.

I am not writing the obituary of the hockey team before the season has started; rather I am just saying my piece early so that when the cry for scalps goes up, I will be able to say I told you so. The club has got the fight, but they haven't got the replacements for last year's losses or as far as that goes the year before last's either. Usually a club which doesn't have the manpower will make up for this deficit by sheer knock down, drag out practice, but we can't do that either because we don't have the ice. Moreover, I don't blame the team for not wanting to pay $35 out of their own pockets for practicing at Placid.

It seems time for the renaissance of hockey at Midd. The few men who started hockey here and organized the other half of our winter sports program cannot be called back at this time to make the adjustments for the future. We have to have men either in the administration or in the alumni group step out and take the task on their shoulders, just as Professor Conroy did at Clarkson and President Byrd at Maryland. There has to be a person or group of persons willing to provide the impetus for these adjustments for the future. Of course, on the other hand, we could pull in our horns and schedule colleges in hockey which we could compete with just as we are. That would be the easy way out, but I don't think any alumni would want this plan.

We have to make improvements some time, why not now? Let's do it soon before the other colleges get so far ahead of Middlebury that there isn't any chance of catching up. We'd become another Carnegie Tech. Well, anyone who is loyal to the school and cares enough about Midd to want the best for her, would not want this.

We'll have to succumb to that old American custom of keeping up with the Jones' and show these schools like Clarkson and R.P.I. that Midd isn't ruled out yet. Where the impetus will come from, I don't know. All I know is that here is an excellent chance for some one to be a leader and put Midd hockey back on its feet, one rung higher. If we haven't got the money, then let's forget I even mentioned the topic, but I don't believe we're as poor as some proclaim.

Some say we are trying to keep up with Wesleyan, Williams, and Amherst, the little three of New England. I say, "are we?" If that's the case, we haven't proved it; once more I say let Middlebury be just plain Middlebury and establish her own standards. If need be, let the other schools try and meet our goals.

THEY SATISFY AND HOW!

"I always smoked Chesterfields in college just like my friends" says New York secretary, Elizabeth Lydon, "and here in New York it seems like almost everyone smokes them."

AND NOW—CHESTERFIELD FIRST TO GIVE YOU SCIENTIFIC FACTS IN SUPPORT OF SMOKING

A responsible consulting organization reports a study by a competent medical specialist and staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfields. For six months a group of men and women smoked only Chesterfield—10 to 40 a day—their normal amount. 45 percent of the group have smoked Chesterfields from one to thirty years for an average of ten years each.

At the beginning and end of the six-months, each smoker was given a thorough examination including X-rays, and covering the sinuses, nose, ears and throat. After these examinations, the medical specialist stated . . .

"It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Remember this report and buy Chesterfields . . . regular or king-size.
